KCHS rewards students in cash

KARNS CITY — A new program at Karns City High School rewards in cash students who work hard in and out of class.

The new Challenge Program gives $250 to the winners of three categories: most improved, best attendance and most community service. Those awards are available to students in grades 10 to 12. The senior with the best overall grade average also is a winner.

The program, which was announced Nov. 14, is sponsored by Sugar Creek Rest and Chicora Medical Center. Susan Beardsley, a representative of the nursing homes, and Karns City teacher Renee Steele introduced the students to the program.

Karns City is the first school in the county to use the program, which was created by businessman Daniel T. Perkins of Johnstown and has spread nationwide.
